

This poem was the result of my overhearing a biology teacher explain to a student various features of a one-celled organism. Of course, that led me to create a dramatic monolog spoken by the obviously lonely organism, perhaps seeking sympathy from anyone who would listen (since there was no bartender around).